A story can sound different depending on who is telling the story. We all see things differently

>>>>>> POINT OF VIEW

Sometimes a character from the story is the storyteller.

If this is the case, you will see pronouns like I, me and we.

"Happy birthday, James!" I sang out.

"Sarah! It's 6 o'clock in the morning! Why are you waking me up?" James angrily mumbled.

"It's your birthday and I am excited for you. I don't want you to sleep through it," I explained.

"It will still be my birthday when I get up in a few hours. Go away."

Fiction POINT OF VIEW

Carefully read the text. Answer the questions.

I have one of the most important jobs! Without me, you would have cavities and have yellow teeth. So why don't you brush your teeth?

Kids cry about having to brush their teeth. I know how they feel.

I am often forgotten. You go on a sleepover and leave your toothbrush on the bathroom counter. Don't you think your friend would use your red toothbrush?

So the next time you brush your teeth, try to be gentle. Put some good toothpaste on me and let me do my job.

STORYTELLER

Carefully read the text. Who is most likely telling the story? Write your answer. Don't forget that narrators sometimes tell the story!

1. I don't know why they got that cat. She does nothing but sleep and lick her paws. She doesn't play fetch like me. Plus, I can do tricks for my family. They love it! I get a treat just for sitting. The cat doesn't sit when they ask her to. I don't even think she knows her own name! Type	2. Jane and Shelly have been best friends since the first grade. They do everything together and rarely get into fights. This year, Jane and Shelly are not in the same class. They cried when they first found out. It has been several months, and they have both made new friends in their new classes, but Jane and Shelly remain best friends. Type
3. "Josh, this book report is fantastic!" exclaimed my teacher. "Thanks! I spent all weekend working on it, and I am proud of it," I responded. Type	4. "Your teeth look great. I can tell that you have been brushing and flossing. I don't see any cavities!" "Keep up the good work, and I'll see you in six months!" "Thank you! I'll make my next appointment on my way home." Type

COLOR ANSWERS

Read the passage below. Then, read the questions and highlight the answer in the text with the color given.

"I love rainy days," I thought to myself as I walked to school. I was wearing my favorite rain boots and carrying my new purple umbrella.

Jackie, my best friend, ran to catch up to me. "Wait for me, Mia! Thanks to this rain, my softball game is cancelled. I was supposed to pitch! I'm so upset!" she exclaimed.

"I'm sorry. Won't you get to pitch in the next game?" I asked.

"Maybe, but this game was special. Mikey, my big brother, was coming. He hates softball, but I talked him into coming to this game," Jackie said with a sigh.

"How can Mikey hate softball? Your whole family loves sports!" I said.

"He's the oddball in our family!" Jackie said with a giggle. "He would rather play video games than come near a sports field!"

- What is Mikey's point of view about sports?
- What is Mia's point of view about the rain?
- What is Jackie's point of view about the rain?
- What is Jackie's family's point of view about softball?
- From whose point of view is the story being told?

MATCHING VIEWS

Carefully read the passage on the left. Then, match the characters to their points of view about building a treehouse. Explain how you know your answer was correct.

Summer break was pretty boring until I came up with an amazing idea. I should build a tree house!

"Noah, that sounds pretty expensive. We don't have the extra cash right now," said Dad.

"Grandpa has lots of scraps of wood. I'm sure that I can find the supplies I need at his house," I said.

"That's a great idea, Noah. I am just worried that building a tree house might be dangerous. You could get hurt using the tools, or you could even fall from the tree. I don't want any broken bones!" exclaimed Mom.

"Mom, I promise to be careful. Wouldn't you rather I spend the summer being active and playing outside? That will mean that I spend less time playing video games," I pointed out.

"Thank goodness I was able to talk Mom and Dad into allowing me to build the tree house! It took an entire month to draw a plan, collect the supplies, and put everything together. It was worth it!"

"This is so cool!" my friends called out.

The rest of summer break was spent in the tree house with my friends. We played board games and make-believe. No more boring summer. For us!

Off to Camp

"Are you excited to go to camp?" Mrs. Coleman asked me. She gave me some instructions. "Omar was up and ready before his alarm went off."

Will tried to give a cheerful smile as he said, "Yeah, I'm excited!"

His mother added, "Will has never been away from home before."

Will's best friend Omar patted his shoulder and said, "Don't worry, you'll be fine."

"Nikki, are you dressed yet?" my mom asked as she peered into my bedroom. When she spotted me, I heard her mumble, "Oh, boy."

There I stood, dressed in a beautiful costume from my most recent dance recital. That costume had everything... glitter, feathers, and polka dots! It seemed like such a waste to only wear it for one show! "What do you think?" I asked.

At that moment, my mom's eyes looked really big. I'm sure that she was just filled with pride.
