Nonfiction TEXT FEATURES

Carefully read the text. Drag the labels from the right to identify the text features used in the passage. Answer the question using complete sentences.

Heading Frog Uses

Food

Did you know that people eat frogs? In many parts of the world frog legs are a very common dish. Indonesia is the world's largest exporter of frog meat. Frogs are also popular in some areas of the United States, China, Vietnam and Thailand.

Subheading

Science

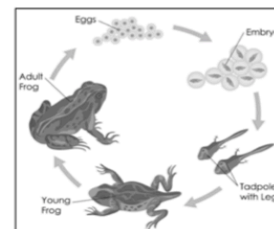

Frogs are commonly used for scientific research. High school and college science classes often dissect frogs. Studying frogs for science is nothing new. In fact, the link between the nervous system and electricity was discovered in the eighteenth-century by a biologist who was studying frogs.

Medication

Frogs can also be used for medication. Some species of poisonous dart frogs produce a strong pain killer.

Fun Fact

There are over 4,800 species of frogs. It is believed that about one-third of these species are threatened with extinction.

This diagram shows the life cycle of a frog from egg until adult.
